Course policies. Please note that the homework deadlines will be strictly enforced. This means that the assignments will be due in class on the day I've requested them, and the late homework will not be accepted. Help each other out and discuss difficulties, but do your own work. If your solution of a problem uses someone else's work, you should acknowledge this explicitly. You are expected to know the (very serious) difference between shared and copied work.

It is expected that you will attend virtually all class meetings. Though I will not control this, any absence is likely to cause difficulties in the course. You should also complete the reading and other assignments on time so that you can participate in class discussions.

More details will appear on the web page.
